INTERNATIONAL JOB HUNTING

Choice and Partners offers job-hunting to help candidates find overseas jobs and international employment opportunities. During an extensive online or phone intake, the candidate's personal- and the search profile are mapped out. During this intake interview, the candidate's background, situation, limitations and wishes are discussed. Agreements are also made about, the search direction, specific job titles, desired salary, work environment and hours. In addition, it is also discussed how the Job-Hunter can best represent the employee. It is important that the Job-Hunter and candidate are on the same page, as in many cases the Job-Hunter will serve as an introduction to the candidate. After creating the search profile or multiple search profiles, job hunting can start!

“You are not alone in the search for other work”

APPROACH

Seeking overseas jobs and international employment opportunities comes with its own challenges. The Job-Hunter will not only inform the candidate where to find the jobs and what the common habits in job-searching and advertising are for the specific country/area are, but will also educate the candidate on the job-application standards and etiquette (approach, resume, interview). The Job-Hunter proposes online job-vacancies, using various job posting websites and Social Media. We also focus on the “hidden” job market while using Choice and Partners' extensive network. The Job-Hunter makes introductions and creates new connections, which allows the candidate to get close to the source and before there's any competition. In addition to the actual job search, the Job-Hunter also has a motivating and activating role. The Job-Hunter has intensive contact with the candidate and will encourage to actively approach the job market.

APPLICATION COACHING

Job-hunting is focused on finding a job. Once we have found a suitable vacancy, the most effective approach is examined in order to optimize the candidate's chances. This may be different for each country. When the candidate gets invited to an interview, there will be intensive and personal application coaching, during which the candidate will learn to present him/ herself in the best way for that specific position. This also includes training in how to present yourself during phone – or video interviews. In addition the Job-Hunter will be able to point out things to take in consideration when discussing benefits with the future employer
